CLEMENCY REFUSED.

JUDGE GUIGON'S VIEWS. Upon the announcement of the decision of the Supreme Court refusing a new trial to John Dull the following application for Executive clemency in his behalf was made to Governor Kemper and urged by several of the influential citizens of Richmond:

The petition of John C. Dull respectfully represents to your Excellency that on the 21st day of November, 1874, he was convicted in the Hustings Court of Richmond

The crime alleged against your petitioner was participation in a certain game of chance whereby a party was defrauded of between five and six hundred dollars, and the allegation of your petitioner's participation was based alone on the circumstance that your petitioner rented the house to those who conducted the game whereby the money was lost. It was not alleged nor pretended that your petitioner was a party to the conduct of the game, or present for one moment during add that on the complaint of the losing party is advised and believes that according to the felonies. RICHMOND, January 16, 1875. My Dear Sir, - In the case of Dull the evidence clearly showed that the prisoner was the leader of a gang of swindlers, who made and by false pretences rob them of their money; it showed that there was no game of chance, as suggested in the petition, but a simple bold larceny; that the case in which the prisoner was convicted was not the only one in which this nefarious pursuit had been followed by him and his confederates, but that it was a regular business, well known to the detectives, who screened the perpe-The question whether the offence was a misdemeanor or felony was fully presented by the record to the Court of Appeals, and of his just sentence. If this crime, which is prevalent in larger cities, is not punished, and with severity, it will soon find again a lodgment in our community, and any lenient dealing with this man will be an inducement in that direction. I have heard but one plea made by his arrived. friends-viz, that in addition to his criminal pursuit he was a convenient instrument for the perpetration of election frauds. the penalty of his crime. The request made by you to communicate freely my views of this application has left me at liberty to go beyond the ordinary statement made in such cases, and authorizes me to say, in conclusion, that in my opinion any pardon of this man, or mitigation of his sentence at this time, would be against the interest of public justice.

Very respectfully, yours, Judge Hustings Court.

His Excellency James L. Kemper, Governor. Yesterday Governor Kemper refused to interfere with the sentence of the court, and Dull will accordingly be taken to the penitentiary to-day to serve out the sentence fixed by the jury who tried him.

Annual Meeting of the Prison Reform of New York, and of Mr. Henry, of England.

Reform Association was held at Association Hall last evening. Owing to the state of the weather the audience was small, but it included a number of our best citizens and a few ladies.

In the absence of Governor Kemper, pre-

THE ANTI-FUNDING BILL ORGANIZATION .-Another conference of the opponents of the funding bill (Conservatives and Radicals) took place in the hall of the House of Delegates last night. About half an hour's time was consumed in discussing the question most rigorous construction of the law his of- whether the doors should be opened to the ances of members would not do to be published to the world. The doors were therethe only manner in which the severity of the fore kept shut, and were carefully guarded. The committee heretofore appointed to prepare a plan of action submitted a report, in effect: First, that the Legislature require the school-tax and license-tax Upon receiving the application the Gov-to be paid in currency; second, that ernor addressed the following communication no more appropriations for the payment of interest be made; third, that all possible obstructions be placed in the way of the taking of coupons for taxes. The report, which we give as fully and as accurately as the means at our disposal will permit, was adopted, after a great number of members had expressed their views. A few bold repudiation speeches were made; the Supreme Court of Appeals was freely and sharply criticised, not to say abused; the funding bill was denounced as the sum and substance of all villainies, and there was a universal determination evinced and expressed to use all means in the power of the Legislature to render it in flective as far as possible. Mr. Round (kepublican), of Prince William county, expressed the opinion that there were some ways to get around the decision of the Supreme Court, but did not very clearly explain them to his hearers, although he read lengthy extracts from that decision. The conference adjourned to meet again at an early day, of which notice will be given. It is the belief of these anti-funders that they can manage the legislation so as to accomplish their objects, and they claim that largely over a majority of members are in sympathy be appointed to recast the whole law in relation to inspections, and report as soon as po:sible. This proposition was discussed at some length, but was lost to sight by the introduction of the question as to whether or no obacco intended for exportation ought to be inspected. The committee finally adourned without taking any decisive action.

MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE ROBBED .-Sunday between midnight and daylight some thief entered the room occupied by Messrs. A. J. Grayson, of Bland; Selden Longley, of Washington county, and T. N. Conrad, of Montgomery, at the residence of George L. Bidgood, Esq., No. 208 east Main street, and committed a daring robbery. These gentlemen were asleep, when the window looking out upon the back porch was raised, and Mr. Longley's clothes were taken from the chair on which they had been left banging, and carried out into an alley and rifled and left. He lost $180 in money, including one $50 bill, and also a legislative pocket-knife, a set of coral shirt bottons, a silver watch, and a chain. Association-Addresses of Dr. Wines, Mr. Grayson was more fortunate. Although his coat and vest were carried into the alley his pants, in which was his pocket-book, The first annual meeting of the Prison- containing some fifty dollars, escaped the eye of the thief. Mr. Conrad was even more fortunate, as he last nothing, his clothes, which were remote from the point of entrance of the thief, having escaped his attention. Shall the Organization of the First

Virginia Regiment Continue? Editors of the Dispatch: We respectfully isk the privilege of addressing the citizens and Common Council of the city, through your columns, in regard to the present condition of the First Virginia regiment. Our object in doing so is to enable us to ascertain from such response as they may make whether or not it is their desire that the organization of the regiment shall continue. Believing that a full and well-equipped regiment should be maintained in the capital of the State we were induced (from a sense of duty) to organize our respective companies nearly four years ago, by which act, on our part, the regiment was formed. This has been done at much expense to the officers and men composing the different companies, most of whom are not able to encounter the expense which necessarily devolves upon them, although willing to discharge their duty; for in volunteer companies the expense aswell as the duties must be borne equally by each member without regard to his circumstances, or its proper financial condition cannot be maintained. It is not our purpose to institute a comparison with volunteer orgapizations in other cities, or with what has been and is still done to promote their success and continuance. We simply desire to know whether or not our regiment is regarded of sufficient importance or consideration to continue its organization. If it is not, we will be relieved of much trouble and expense. If it is, it is time that we should ask and expect some proof of it. Without an armory the proper condition and discipline of volunteer companies cannot be maintained; and from the organization of the First Virginia regiment in this city it has been without the encouragement of an armory, or any other than that afforded by a small contribution on the part of the city (which we gratefully acknowledge), necessarily imposing great expense upon each company. We have been compelled to assemble in such rooms as each company could procure-rooms which are either unsuitable TOBACCO INSPECTIONS .- The special joint or at too great a reut to enable us to continue has already been disbanded, and we regret to say that the proper organization and discipline of the remainder cannot be maintained withof chapter 85 of the Code of 1873, in rela- out your assistance in providing us with an keeping of the arms with which the State has provided us, and thus giving us your sanction in our efforts to render the regiment an has made a provision towards arming and equipping the regiment, but, located here in the city, it is a body for your protection should it be required, and we simply ask, in all respect, whether or not it is your desire that the organization of the regiment shall con-

MAXWELL T. CLARE, Captain Company F; In the discussion which ensued, and which L. L. Bass, Captain Company B; Louis J. Bossieux, Captain Company E; RICHARD M. TAYLOR, Captain Company D; George W. Jarvis, Lieutenant commanding

Company H; J. V. Bingood, Cap'ain Company C; WILLIAM P. M. KELLAM, Captain Company I approve the above. In my judgment it is impossible to maintain an organized and disciplined regiment of volunteers without BRADLEY T. JOHNSON, an armory. Colonel commanding. The Late Robert Edmond, Esq.

Messrs. Editors,-Since the close of the war Mr. Robert Edmond, deceased, bas every winter placed in my hands $100 for the poor of this city, and always opposed any acknowledgment of his donations in the public papers. A man who thus imposed upon himself this annual tax to relieve the distresses incident to winter evinces a true philanthropy.

His more private benefactions were doubtless upon the same liberal scale. Two years ago he contributed largely to one of our benevolent institutions, and told the writer he 'must call again, and he would do more." It is also pleasant to think that while his body lies in the cold embrace of death the hearth of many a widow in this city is blazing W. W. P. with his generosity.
